27 Now these are the generations of Terah. Terah fathered Abram, Nahor, and Haran; and Haran fathered Lot. 28 Haran died in the presence of his father Terah in the land of his kindred, in Ur of the Chaldeans. 29 And Abram and Nahor took wives. The name of Abram's wife was Sarai, and the name of Nahor's wife, Milcah, the daughter of Haran the father of Milcah and Iscah. 30 Now Sarai was barren; she had no child.

In The Tracks of Trust

31 Terah took Abram his son and Lot the son of Haran, his grandson, and Sarai his daughter-in-law, his son Abram's wife, and they went forth together from Ur of the Chaldeans to go into the land of Canaan, but when they came to Haran, they settled there. 32 The days of Terah were 205 years, and Terah died in Haran.

Sarai's Barrenness

It is situations of human helplessness that provide occasions for God's power to be demonstrated and recognized.

A wooden funnel is shown pouring water into a garden. The water is captured in mid-air, creating a dense stream of bright, shimmering droplets. The background is a soft-focus green garden with various plants and foliage. The overall scene is bright and vibrant, with a strong emphasis on the natural elements of water and earth.

A long, straight line of footprints is etched into the golden sand of a beach, receding towards the ocean in the distance. The footprints are evenly spaced and lead the eye from the foreground into the background. The sand is fine-grained and has a warm, yellowish-brown hue. The ocean is visible in the upper left corner, with gentle waves lapping at the shore. The overall scene is peaceful and evokes a sense of a quiet walk on a beach.
